CRISIS IN CARACAS

Violent clashes erupted in Venezuela on Tuesday as opposition leader Juan Guaidó called for a revolt against current president Nicolás Maduro. 2

Venezuela's Guaido urges troops to unite against Maduro, violence erupts

An uneasy peace had returned to the nation by Tuesday afternoon.

Venezuelan opposition leader Juan Guaido on Tuesday made his strongest call yet to the military to help him oust President Nicolas Maduro, although there was little sign of defection from the armed forces leadership and isolated clashes fizzled out.

Several dozen armed troops accompanying Guaido clashed with soldiers supporting Maduro at a rally in Caracas early on Tuesday, while large anti-government protests in the streets turned violent.

But an uneasy peace had returned by Tuesday afternoon and there did not appear to be signs of an immediate attempt by the opposition to take power through military force.

Officials from President Donald Trump's administration said three top Maduro loyalists had apparently been in talks with the opposition and indicated they would support a peaceful transition of power.

"They negotiated for a long time on the means of restoring democracy but it seems that today they are not going forward," said U.S. envoy for Venezuela Elliott Abrams, while U.S. national security adviser John Bolton said: "All agreed that Maduro had to go." Neither provided evidence.

They named the three as Venezuelan Defense Minister Vladimir Padrino, Supreme Court chief judge Maikel Moreno and presidential guard commander Ivan Rafael Hernandez Dala.

Venezuela's U.N. Ambassador Samuel Moncada rejected Bolton's remarks as "propaganda."

Earlier on Tuesday, Padrino said in a broadcast, flanked by uniformed men, that the armed forces would continue to defend the constitution and "legitimate authorities" and that military bases were operating as normal. Moreno issued a call for calm on Twitter.

Guaido, in Twitter posts, wrote that he had begun the "final phase" of his campaign to topple Maduro, calling on Venezuelans and the armed forces to back him ahead of May Day mass street protests planned for Wednesday.

"The moment is now!" he wrote. "The future

Tens of thousands of people marched in Caracas in support of Guaido on Tuesday, clashing with riot police along the main Francisco Fajardo thoroughfare. A National Guard armored is ours: the people and Armed Forces united."

National Assembly leader Guaido invoked the constitution to assume an interim presidency in January, arguing that Maduro's re-election in 2018 was illegitimate. But Maduro has held on, despite economic chaos, most Western countries backing Guaido, increased U.S. sanctions, and huge protests by Venezuelans' opposition.

Tuesday's move was Guaido's boldest effort yet to persuade the military to rise up against Maduro. If it fails, it could be seen as evidence that he lacks sufficient support. It might also encourage the authorities, who have already stripped him of parliamentary immunity and opened multiple investigations into him, to arrest him.

car slammed into protesters who were throwing stones and hitting the vehicle. Thirty-six people were injured in the incidents, most of them hit with pellets or rubber bullets, said Doctor Maggi Santi of the Salud Chacao health center in eastern Caracas.

Maduro, a former bus driver who took office after the death of political mentor President Hugo Chavez in 2013, said he had spoken with military leaders and that they had shown him "their total loyalty."

"Nerves of steel!" Maduro wrote on Twitter. "I call for maximum popular mobilization to assure the victory of peace. We will win!"

Oil prices topped $73 before easing, partly driven higher by the uncertainty in Venezuela, an OPEC member whose oil exports have been hit by the U.S. sanctions and an economic crisis.

Guaido, in a video on his Twitter account, was accompanied by men in military uniform and leading opposition politician Leopoldo Lopez, a surprise public appearance for a man who has been under house arrest since 2017.

Chile's foreign minister said later Tuesday that Lopez and his family had entered Chile's diplomatic residence.

U.S. ROLE

Venezuela is mired in a deep economic crisis despite its vast oil reserves. Shortages of food and medicine have prompted more than 3 million Venezuelans to emigrate in recent years.

The slump has worsened this year, with large areas of territory left in the dark for days at a time by power outages.

"My mother doesn't have medicine, my economic situation is terrible, my family has had to emigrate. We don't earn enough money. We have no security. But we are hopeful, and I think that this is the beginning of the end of this regime," said Jose Madera, 42, a mechanic, sitting atop his motorbike in a protest on Tuesday.

The White House declined to comment on whether Washington had been consulted or had advance knowledge of what Guaido was planning.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

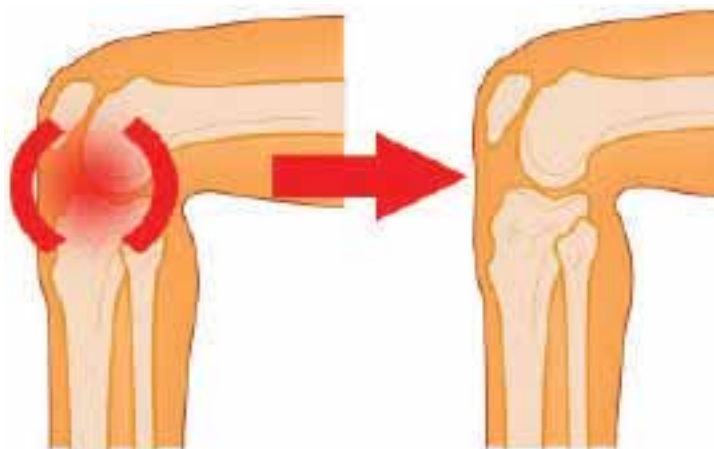

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Facebook announces privacy-focused redesign; critics call out potential pitfalls

Meanwhile, the company faces a new investigation by the New York state attorney general.

letters@metro.us

Facebook announced a significant redesign on Tuesday, rolling out features geared toward privacy in response to years of scandals over its handling of private user data and status as a vehicle for Russian election interference. But critics say the new features could cause problems of their own.

Dubbed FB5, the redesign is the platform's biggest in half a decade. Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg announced the new features at the company's annual developer conference. Among them:

a cleaner look; a bigger focus on private groups and events; a "Meet New Friends" function; and a dating app. Facebook's disappearing Stories will be promoted, and News Feed broadcasting deemphasized.

"The future is private," said Zuckerberg. "Over time, I believe that a private social platform will be even more important to our lives than our digital town squares."

The company said some of Facebook's new features would be immediately apparent, and some would be rolled out in the coming months.

"Now look, I get that a lot of people aren't sure we're serious about this," Zuckerberg said. "We don't exactly have the strongest reputation on privacy right now, to put it lightly. But I'm committed to doing this well and starting a new chapter for our product."

Mark Zuckerberg.

REUTERS

"We believe that for the future, people want a privacy-focused social platform," he added.

Facebook has been in a PR tailspin for years. In early 2017, reports surfaced that Russia extensively used the platform to interfere in the 2016 U.S. presidential election. Kremlin-backed hackers created fake profiles, groups and events, and disseminated and amplified false news stories to sow discord among the electorate and harm Hillary Clinton's candidacy.

The company has also been buffeted by waves of negative headlines about its handling of private user data. In March 2018, it was reported that data-mining company Cambridge Analytica harvested personal information from 87 million Facebook users without their consent. In November 2018, The New York Times reported that Zuckerberg and Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg slow-walked security upgrades to the platform and attempted to discredit the company's critics. The next month, the Times reported that Facebook gave tech companies — including Spotify, Netflix and Microsoft — access to Facebook users' personal data, including private messages.

Facebook's now expecting a $5 billion FCC fine.

Reports of privacy violations surfaced as late as last week. On April 25, New York State Attorney General Letitia James announced that her office would open an investigation into allegations that Facebook improperly harvested the email address books of 1.5 million users without their consent, using it to target advertising.

Critics warned Tuesday that the new features may not be as benevolent as advertised. They pointed out that hate speech, misinformation and political interference spread in private groups will be less accountable to the press, fact-checking and law enforcement.

"The future is private. Over time, I believe that a private social platform will be even more important to our lives than our digital town squares."

Mark Zuckerberg, Facebook CEO

"Not to overreact, but this is terrifying," tweeted NBC News internet reporter Brandy Zadrozny.

Booze ads banned on city property

New Yorkers will no longer see alcohol ads posted on bus shelters, newsstands, phone booths and any other faces of city-owned property.

"There's no doubt that far too many New Yorkers struggle with serious substance misuse issues, among them excessive drinking," said NYC Mayor de Blasio in a statement. "This order banning alcohol ads from city property reaffirms our commitment to health equity and our stand to protect the well-being of all New Yorkers."

The mayor signed an executive order implementing the ban, which will affect all new and renewed contracts for advertising on city-owned property. Ads that are already posted can remain until their respective contracts expire, but future ads on city property will include a provision barring "advertisements, sponsorship or branding" of alcohol products.

The order does not apply to private property like stores, venues, bars, restaurants or establishments with licenses to sell alcohol.

"In New York City, we see far too many deaths related to alcohol," Health Commissioner Dr. Oxiris Barbot said on NYC.gov. "We know exposure to alcohol advertising can lead to drinking more alcohol, more often — behavior that can be harmful and even fatal. Today's ban of alcohol ads on city property will help protect communities from the burden of harmful alcohol advertising."

A 2017 study released by the New York Academy of Medicine found that alcohol ads are directly linked to greater consumption, especially amongst young people.

"The earlier young people begin drinking, the greater their likelihood of developing alcohol use disorders in adulthood. Studies also find that young people who drink are also more vulnerable to the impact of advertisements than adults, with 15- to 20-year-olds most susceptible," the study found.

The New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene reported that in 2016, there were more than 110,000 alcohol-related emergency department visits in New York City, and nearly 2,000 New Yorkers died from alcohol-attributable causes, such as liver disease, driving fatalities, and liver and esophageal and other alcohol-related cancers. Studies showed that East Harlem had the highest rate of alcohol-related hospitalizations, more than five times that of the Upper East Side.

4 Fashion collaborations you didn't know existed

BUD-WEISER X
SUPREME

Before the Instagram era, there were already collections that featured logos. The beer brand and Supreme did it in Spring/Summer 2009 with apparel including T-shirts, tank tops, button-ups and accessories like bucket hats, duffel bags, tote bags and snapbacks. This collection became fashionable several years later.

TOSHIO MAEDA X
SUPREME

The erotic-manga artist from Japan, who was prolific in the 1980s and '90s, made a collection with Supreme in 2015. The so-called NSFW Capsule Collection mostly included hoodies and T-shirts, as well as cushions and other basic items. The godfather of the hentai genre, who has also collaborated with Playboy, created this odd collection, with each piece costing $75 on average.

CROCS X BALENCIAGA

Many still do not believe that the brand that once changed fashion with the original spirit of Cristóbal Balenciaga, elements of flamenco and the Catholic religion, has come to this. But luxury brands know what can make an impact and know how to do it. To begin with, the hated shoes had already been used by Christopher Kane in 2015, and then in 2016 were featured at London Fashion Week. The Crocs x Balenciaga collaboration was released for Fall/Winter 2018 and cost more than a $1,000 a pair. The collection sold out despite the buzz it caused on the social media.

COWGIRL X
"THE HANDMAID'S TALE"

For 2017, the New York brand reinterpreted all aspects of the costumes created by Ane Crabtree, designer for film and television. Made with the endorsement of Hulu (producer of the show), the collaboration analyzed every wardrobe detail of the universe created by Margaret Atwood, in which a dystopian future finds the women of the Republic of Gilead filled with oppression through red capes and white accessories. Bonnets, drapes and oversized silhouettes were part of the outfits.

Make a home down payment without wrecking your finances

NerdWallet is a personal finance website.

Maximizing a home down payment can make sense: The bigger the down payment, the lower the monthly mortgage bill and the better the chance of building equity more quickly.

But putting too much down could leave you without enough cash for home maintenance — or anything else.

Pinpointing the right amount involves balancing the advantages of boosting the down payment against the need to hold back money for urgent upgrades, life's emergencies, and having some fun with your new home.

Effect of a higher down payment

Calculating how different down payments would affect a monthly mortgage payment is eye-opening. Some lenders require only 3 percent down for conventional home loans, which makes getting in the door easier but means assuming more debt than with higher down payments. Many borrowers ask if they should scrape together a little more, such as 5 percent versus 3 percent, says Rick Bechtel, head of U.S. residential lending at TD Bank. But that probably wouldn't make enough difference in the monthly mortgage payment to justify doing so if it left you strapped, he says.

But a higher down payment can make a significant difference if it means lowering or avoiding mortgage insurance. The insurance, which can involve upfront and monthly fees, protects the lender if the borrower defaults. Depending on the type of loan, making a higher down payment may eliminate some of that expense, if not all of it. Kristin Phillips, a Tampa, Florida, psychologist and author of The Debt Shrink blog, says she and her husband, Brandon, couldn't put down the traditional 20 percent, but they wanted to put down more than the minimum when they bought a home in 2013.

Borrow with care
When deciding on down payment size, consider its effect on other aspects of your financial plan.

Twenty-nine percent of homeowners ages 21 to 34 borrowed from retirement accounts to help fund down payments, according to the Bank of the West's 2018 Millennial Study.

But the decision to do so shouldn't be taken lightly. Borrowing from a 401(k) is particularly risky. After a job loss, the loan must be repaid by the next tax filing deadline or it's taxed as dinary income, with a 10 percent penalty if the withdrawal is taken before age 59.5.

Using a Roth IRA to boost a down payment is a better option, says Aaron Clarke, a certified financial planner and wealth adviser at Halpern Financial in Ashburn, Virginia. There are no taxes or penalties on withdrawals of contributions. First-time homebuyers who have contributed to a Roth for at least five years can withdraw up to $10,000 of earnings on the contributions, tax- and penalty-free. But Linda Rogers, a certified financial planner and owner of Planning Within Reach in Memphis, Tennessee, says she doesn't recommend borrowing from retirement savings. Many people are behind on saving anyway, she says, and borrowing from an IRA means losing tax-free growth.

Expect the unexpected

Thirty-four percent of recent first-time buyers say they no longer felt financially secure after buying their current home, according to NerdWallet's 2019 Home Buyer Report, based in part on a survey of 2,029 adults by The Harris Poll for NerdWallet.

To maintain security, resist draining your savings for the down payment and closing costs. Leave some for emergencies, such as a car breakdown.

And homeownership includes plenty of those. To minimize surprises, review the home inspector's report and negotiate repairs with the seller before purchasing. Include some cushion.

Trotz, Islanders staying calm amidst 0-2 deficit to Hurricanes

The Islanders head to Carolina to face the Hurricanes for Game 3 of their playoff series tonight.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Calm, cool, collected, assured.

That's the feeling around the New York Islanders locker room despite facing an 0-2 hole after dropping both home games at the Barclays Center in their second-round playoff series against the Carolina Hurricanes.

Those first two games in Brooklyn featured just one Islanders goal, which technically didn't even come off their own stick as Mathew Barzal's pass in front of Petr Mrazek's net was deflected in by Hurricanes defenseman Jacob Slavin.

The offensive struggles have not come without their tantalizing chances.

There have been goals by Barzal, Ryan Pulock, Jordan Eberle and Devon Toews disallowed during the series and there were three posts hit in the third period of Game 2 alone as the Islanders tried to scramble back from a 2-1 deficit.

Barry Trotz overcame an 0-2 playoff deficit last year with the Washington Capitals. GETTY IMAGES

That's just the way the puck bounces, sometimes — a harsh reality that the Islanders have easily accepted over the past few days.

Now they're using it as fuel for the fire as they prepare for Game 3 tonight in Carolina.

"That's the way it goes sometimes," veteran winger Josh Bailey said following Game 2. "It could be 2-0 us, it could be 1-1. Unfortunately, it's 0-2. We can't get down on ourselves. We still feel good about our group and have confidence that we can turn this thing around."

The lack of panic derives from head coach Barry Trotz, who continues to keep his rather inexperienced squad level-headed throughout the adversity.

"Your initial emotion after a game where you feel like you played well enough to win the hockey game and you don't, I think there's some frustration for a few minutes and then I think confidence grows out of that and you go, 'You know what? We're fine. Just play our game and we'll win the series,'" Trotz said. "We dug ourselves a hole. We've been resilient all year."

The Islanders have not lost three consecutive games all year and Trotz doesn't plan on seeing it happen for the first time tonight.

"We're going to Carolina to win two games, plain and simple," he told reporters on Monday. "You can't win two unless you focus on the first, so we'll focus on the first and go from there."

Historically speaking, teams that have taken a 2-0 playoff series lead have gone on to advance 87.2 percent of the time. That leaves the Islanders with a skinny 12.8 percent chance to come back from this deficit.

Luckily for the Islanders, Trotz has already done this once, leading the Washington Capitals back from an 0-2 hole last year in the Eastern Conference first round against the Columbus Blue Jackets.

The eventual Stanley Cup champions also dropped those first two games at home.

New York will head to Raleigh to meet back up with a Hurricanes team which is plenty hobbled. The unsolvable Mrazek, along with defenseman Trevor van Riemsdyk and forwards Jordan Martinook, Michael Ferland, Andrei Svechnikov, and Saku Maenalanen, are all nursing injuries.

A shorthanded Carolina side with backup goalie Curtis McElhinney, who stopped all 16 Islanders shots in relief of Mrazek in Game 2 — his first appearance in 22 games — could be ripe for the picking should the Islanders recapture their scoring touch.

"You've got to respond and you've got to dig in. We have another level," Trotz said, per the New York Post. "There are some players on our team that have another level of focus, another level of commitment — all those things, that's necessary to win. You can't have any passengers. We're going to have to go in there fully committed, and if we do that, it gives ourselves a chance to have success."

Report: KD to get MSG show if he signs with Knicks

The second round of the NBA Playoffs won't stop the towering inferno that is the rumor of Kevin Durant possibly joining the New York Knicks this summer.

As Durant and the Golden State Warriors try to navigate their way past the Houston Rockets, industry sources told Marc Berman of the New York Post that the 10-time All-Star would host his own show on MSG Network.

The Knicks have been linked with Durant for the better part of the last year as an abundance of salary-cap space will ensure they might have room for two max-salary contracts within their roster next year.

New York has also been rumored to be in on Kyrie Irving to create a dynamic duo at Madison Square Garden.

Should they be awarded with the No. 1 pick in the 2019 NBA Draft, Duke star Zion Williamson will also be added to the mix.

It will fast-forward a rebuild that has been stuck in neutral for the better part of the last two decades but hit new lows this year both on and off the court.

After tying a franchise record with 65 losses this season, MSG Network experienced a 38 percent drop in ratings, per the Sports Business Journal.

That really shouldn't be news considering New Yorkers, especially the casual fan, will always have better things to do than watching one of the worst teams in Knicks franchise history.

Durant — who owns his own production company in Thirty Five Media — already hosts a show on ESPN called "The Boardroom," which offers a behind-the-scenes look at the business aspect of sports.
